

SPONSORSHIP PROPOSAL

A Pan-African Women's Summit on HIV, Sexual & Reproductive Health & Justice

13 - 15, July 2016

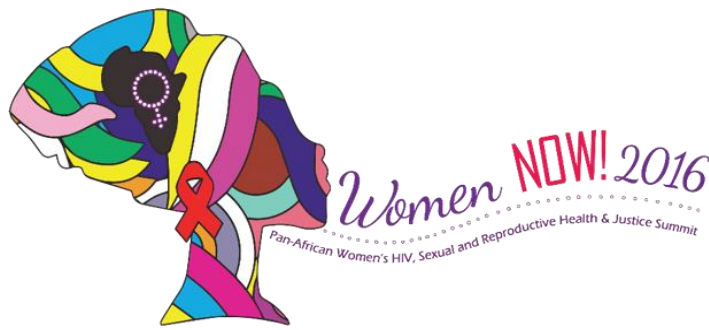

Durban, South Africa

Women Now! 2016 will provide an opportunity to organize women and girls of African descent to assess and influence the content and execution of the International AIDS Conference 2016. The summit will address critical areas of concern for the equity and equality of black women and girls in HIV, Sexual and Reproductive Health research, resources and program implementation. This critical conversation is intended to accelerate women's and girl's organizing and collective action on key issues of race, economic and gender inequality, empowerment, gender-based trauma, violence, sexual and reproductive health and justice.

WomenNOW! 2016 Summit

July 13 - 15, 2016

Hilton Hotel, Durban South Africa

The WomenNOW! 2016 Summit needs sponsoring partners to help us hold the first-ever international meeting on the intersection of HIV, Sexual & Reproductive Health & Justice, with a specific focus on women of African Descent. This Summit is the inaugural effort to accelerate the research and implementation of effective strategies to improve sexual and reproductive health outcomes, with an HIV lens, of women and girls around the world. Representing over 10 countries in Africa, North America and Europe, the Planning Committee is excited about the upcoming dialogue and deliberations. We ask that you join us and provide funding support to make it a reality.

Women Now! 2016 will provide an opportunity to organize women and girls of African descent, along with our allies, to assess and influence the content and execution of the International AIDS Conference. In this first year, the Summit will address intersectionality in various areas of concern for the equity, equality and liberation of black women and girls, especially HIV, Sexual and Reproductive Health research, resources and implementation. This critical conversation is intended to accelerate women's and girl's organizing and collective action on key issues of race, economic and gender inequality, empowerment, gender-based trauma, violence, sexual and reproductive health and justice. We believe the timeliness and location of the meeting are significant as countries and communities scale up efforts to meet common goals of ending the HIV pandemic, improving sexual and reproductive health outcomes, achieving the Sustainable Development Goals, and eliminating gender-based oppressions of violence, poverty and discrimination - especially among adolescent girls and young women.

We are confident that our interests are your interests, and hope that you will plan to join us, partner with us and provide much needed resources and funding support. Our time to secure the necessary funds is short, and we look forward to hearing from you soon. Read on for more information!

Event Purpose

The WomenNOW! 2016 Summit will be the first pre-conference of its kind. The primary goal of Women NOW! 2016 is to bring together a broad diversity of leaders and emerging leaders who are concerned about women's and girls' unique needs regarding sexual health and development to influence the agenda at the International AIDS Conference (AIDS2016). Each subsequent Summit will have a specific focus. In 2016, the focus is organizing women and girls to impact institutional and community responses to HIV among Black women and girls around the world.

We envision some key outcomes from this inaugural gathering:

- Ramp up a global coordinated response to the root causes for the disparate vulnerabilities of women and girls of African descent who are affected by the HIV pandemic worldwide.

- A published report or manuscript that can contribute to the peer-reviewed, journalistic, investigative and/or social media platforms that drive the increased attention to resources, funding, services and policy needed to prioritize women of African descent as a global key population.
- Establish a formal network or partnership to convene the Women Now! Summit to coincide with every bi-annual International AIDS Conference sponsored by the International AIDS Society; and to sustain a focused influence on women and girls as a key population in the accelerated fight to end the HIV epidemic.

At the end of the day, WomenNOW! hopes to secure a bold network and new global commitment to solidarity on women's issues, especially Black women's and girls' capacity and agency to overcome the sexual and reproductive justice challenges that exacerbate the impacts of HIV risk and transmission among women of African descent.

Your support will help us kick start The WomenNOW! Summit to campaign and re-energize the collective force of women's and girls' organizing and mobilizing to tackle sexual and reproductive oppression locally, regionally and globally.
